Curators Needed at City Zoo

Experts in the care and feeding of a wide variety of animals are being sought by the City Civil Service Department as curators for the Los Angeles Zoo, now under construction.

Trained curators having specialized experience with birds, mammals, and reptiles are needed by the City Recreation and Parks Department to assist Dr. W. A. Young, zoo director.

Mrs. Muriel M. Morse, general manager, Civil Service Department, said that only college graduates with majors in zoology or biology and three years of professional zoo experience will be eligible for civil service examination.

IN ADDITION, applicants for posts as curator of birds, curator of mammals, and curator of reptiles must have at least one year of experience in the field for which they are being examined.

Mrs. Morse emphasized that the three curators will be employees of the Recreation and Parks Department and will have all civil service benefits, including opportunities for promotion by competitive examination, paid holidays and vacations, a five-day work week, sick leave, and retirement benefits.

Applications and complete information may be obtained from the Civil Service Department, Room 5 Los Angeles City Hall, until Sept. 10.

STOP FOR STRETCHES

When you go on a long auto trip, stop often so that both driver and passengers get a chance to stretch their legs, the Los Angeles County Heart Association advises. Prolonged inactivity in a sitting position can slow down the circulation in the legs.
